

Homework: Prose Rough Draft

Prose: Writing in its normal continuous form, without the rhythmic or visual line structures of poetry.

In multi-genre papers writers can combine fact with imagination to invent scenes that illustrate truth or to render scenes that actually happened but whose details have been lost.

Topics for Prose

1. Indelible Moments: Physically impossible to rub out, wash out or alter. Impossible to remove from the mind or memory and therefore remaining forever.
2. Central Acts: Many characters are identified with some act or process they do so routinely that it is a part of them.
3. Meaningful Places/ Crucial Things: Places, objects, ideas that hold a crucial place in our lives.

Narrative Summary vs. Dramatic Scene

-Narrative summary tells what happens.

-Dramatic scene helps the reader experience what is on the page.

Write a dramatic scene about an indelible moment, a central act, a crucial thing, or a memorable place.
